Generation No. 1

1. Ole¹ Eriksen (Erik^A Olsen) was born 26.11.1817 in Nordre Glomsåshellerud u. Glomsås, Strøm, Sør-Odal, Hedmark, Norway, and died 05.02.1899 in Norsewood, Hawkes Bay, New Zealand. He married Anne Sørensdatter 27.12.1844 in Sør-Odal, Hedmark, Norway. She was born 01.04.1821 in Søndre Mellom u. Åfstgarden, Strøm, Sør-Odal, Hedmark, Norway, and died 01.12.1891 in New Zealand.

Notes for Ole Eriksen:

Ole ERIKSEN > GLOMSÅS > NORSEWOOD# One of first settlers at Norsewood, New Zealand
Ole and his wife came to New Zealand with six of their nine children. One of their children (baby Nils) died at birth in Norway. Their daughter, Andrea, came to New Zealand with them on the 1872 Høvding with her husband and two children. Their son, Erik, came to New Zealand in 1880, and joined his family at Norsewood. Their daughter Rangdi stayed in Norway.
New Zealand records show that he was senile at the time of his death.
Story:

Leaving Norway:

Ole ERICKSEN GLAMAAS and his family travelled approximately 150 miles on foot from Sør-Odal in Norway to Christiania (now known as Oslo) to board the 3 masted sailing boat Høvding which was leaving on the 30th of May 1872 bound for the Port of Napier in New Zealand.

On their long walk to Christiania they carried as much of their bedding and belongings that was humanly possible.

With Ole and his wife Anna were 6 of their 9 children. Their daughter Andrea had her husband Torkil and their 2 children with them on the journey.

Ole and Anna's youngest child was 7 at the time, and Andrea's youngest child was only a baby.

The family finally made it to Christiania and were in the process of boarding the ship with all the children and their precious belongings. The ship's company stopped the family boarding with their bedding as they were concerned about fleas and lice coming aboard in the bedding. The family was told to dispose of the bedding and purchase new bedding before they would be able to board the ship.

This was a very stressful problem for the family as they were extremely poor, and had no money to spare for purchasing new bedding.

They were rather distraught with the thought that they would not be able to leave with the ship to start their new life in New Zealand. Poverty and the possibility of starvation had driven them to leave their beloved homeland.

Somehow Ole and Anna were able to clean all of their bedding to the satisfaction of the ship's captain and were allowed to board.

They arrived in Napier on the 15th of September 1872. The sailing trip had taken three and a half months with over 300 men, women and children on board.

Ole and Anna had 2 other children, Erik and Rangdi, who decided to stay on in Norway.

Erik eventually joined the rest of the family in NZ, in 1880.

Ole and Anne had also had a baby that died as an infant and is buried in Norway.

The conditions on board the ship by the end of the journey were very poor. The sight of land was the cause of much excitement for all aboard.

The Ericksen family were among the original settlers to the town of Norsewood, in the Hawkes Bay, New Zealand.

On arrival in Napier the Men folk of the families left their families in temporary housing at the old army barracks on the hills overlooking Napier while they set off on the long walk which took several days to Norsewood.

Once the men arrived in Norsewood the land they were promised as part of the governments "work for Labour scheme" was balled off in 40 acre lots.

They were given food and supplies to last while they cleared and prepared shelter for the themselves and for their families.

After 2 weeks, the women and children joined their husbands on the new land.

Land Ballot:

I am to believe that the land was to be found on the corner of Petersen Rd and State highway 2, a couple of kilometres southwest of Norsewood township. The land was then farmed by his son Erik.
